- A historic palazzo in Lecce has been reimagined as an art-led hotel. In the Puglian town of Lecce, the seven-suite Palazzo Luce boutique in the town's historic centre is the brainchild of Milanese art collector Anna Maria Enselmi. Now transformed into an art and design-filled hotel, contemporary art lies at the heart of the 14th-century palazzo, once the residence of Maria d'Enghien, countess of Lecce and Queen of Naples.
